Singapore's Iconic Food

Singapore is famously known for our diverse culinary scene with a long list of irresistible iconic food. Below are a few of the many iconic Singapore food that have captured the hearts of many and we look at the origins of these dishes!

Kaya Toast

Kaya toast is considered the national breakfast of Singapore. A decadent kaya toast is simply two slices of golden and crisp toasted bread, with a generous spread of Hainanese kaya and slabs of butter within. Kaya toast is often enjoyed with soft-boiled eggs.

It is believed that Hainanese immigrants who used to work as cooks on British ships, household or hotels, created kaya toast. As British was leaving Singapore in the early 20th century, these cooks saw business opportunities in selling food in coffeeshops. They created kaya and developed kaya toast drawing inspiration from the British breakfast.

Ingredients for making kaya are simple, namely, palm sugar, coconut milk and eggs. Traditionally grilled over a charcoal stove, kaya toast is now toasted using electric toasters. The dish has also evolved into a tea time snack!

Hainanese Chicken Rice

A mouthwatering plate of succulent poached chicken meat, garnished with light soya sauce, sesame oil, cucumber slices and coriander leaves. It is usually eaten with chicken broth infused rice accompanied by garlic chilli sauce with grated ginger.

The dish most likely evolved with local influences, from the salt water boiled Wenchang chicken of Hainan Island to the well-loved Hainanese chicken rice of Singapore! Adopting Cantonese-style cooking, Singapore's Hainanese chicken rice uses younger birds for the tenderness in meat. The poached to perfect doneness chicken is then plunged into icy bath. This action quickly cools the chicken, keeps the meat tender and also results in a jelly-like fat beneath the smooth skin. Another uniqueness is, the rice used to be served in the form of rice ball, which is a rare sight in Singapore now.

Laksa

Singapore's version of laksa is a bowl of thick rice vermicelli in rich and pleasantly spiced gravy with coconut milk. At the right consistency, the fragrant broth brings out the flavours of the seafood topping like prawns and fishcake.

The origin of laksa is uncertain. Due to the ingredients used, it is likely a creation of the Peranakans. The thick rice vermicelli is used in Chinese dishes while the spice paste is used in Malay dishes. The traditional laksa making method is a lengthy process, requiring hours of stirring and simmering. The coconut milk used is acquired by hand squeezing grated coconut mixed with water. And the spice paste is made from ingredients like laksa leaves, lemongrass, galangal, candlenuts, turmeric, shallots, chillies, garlic and belacan. Nowadays, creative culinary talents in Singapore have come up with a stir-fried version of laksa!

Staying Cool in Singapore's Heat

Is the sweltering hot and humid weather in Singapore making you run into every available air-conditioned space? While air conditioning might seem like the only refuge, there are other ways to stay cool and comfortable while being more energy-efficient. Here are some practical tips to help you beat the heat on our sunny island.

Dress for the Summer

Your choice of clothing can significantly impact how cool you feel throughout the day. Here are some tips:

- Wear a Hat: A wide-brimmed hat not only shields your face and neck from the sun but also helps you stay cooler outdoors.
- Choose Breathable Fabrics: Materials like cotton, linen, seersucker, and hemp are excellent choices as they allow air to flow and wick away sweat.
- Choose Loose-fitting Clothes: Avoid body-hugging outfits that cling to your skin. Loose clothing improves ventilation and prevents overheating.
- Light-coloured Clothing: Lighter shades reflect sunlight and keep you cooler compared to darker tones, which tend to absorb heat.

Self-care Essentials

Staying cool isn't just about your surroundings. Your self-care routine matters too. Consider these tips:

- Use Sunscreen: Protect your skin from harmful UVA and UVB rays by applying and reapplying a high SPF broad-spectrum sunscreen, even if you are indoors most of the time.
- Cool Skincare: Store your skincare products in the fridge for a refreshing application.
- Hydrate Your Skin: Regularly moisturise with lightweight, water-based creams or gels to maintain your skin's hydration levels in the heat.

Staying Cool Outdoors

When venturing outdoors, be strategic to stay comfortable and avoid overheating. Here are some tips:

- Stay Hydrated: Always carry an insulated bottle with a chilled beverage. Drinking water or non-alcoholic drinks replenishes fluids lost through sweating and helps regulate your body temperature. Avoid alcoholic beverages as they can dehydrate you.
- Time Your Activities: Plan outdoor activities during cooler hours, such as early mornings or late afternoons. Avoid the hottest part of the day, typically between 11am to 3pm.
- Seek Shade: Stay under shaded areas to avoid direct sunlight. For instance when at the beach, look for a spot beneath a tree or umbrella.
- Carry a Portable Fan: A portable fan has become a must-have accessory for combating the heat.
- Take a Swim: A dip in the pool is an enjoyable way to cool down.
- Indulge in Cold Treats: A chilled dessert or an ice-cold drink can provide instant relief from the heat.
- Cold Showers: A quick cold shower after a day in the sun will help lower your body temperature and leave you feeling refreshed.

Did you know?

- A ceiling fan rotating in the anti-clockwise direction creates a breeze by blowing air downwards, making the room feel significantly cooler.
- Placing a bowl of ice or frozen water bottles in front of a fan creates a DIY air cooler that circulates chilled air around your space.
- Carrying an umbrella with a reflective lining can deflect up to 90% of UV rays, keeping you significantly cooler when outdoors.
- Applying cold water or ice packs on pulse points - like your wrists, neck, and behind your ears - can help cool your whole body faster because blood vessels are close to the skin at these areas.

Staying Cool at Home

Creating a cool and comfortable indoor environment doesn't have to rely solely on air-conditioning. Consider these tips:

- Enhance Airflow: Position a stand fan near windows to draw in cooler air. Additionally, open doors or windows at opposite ends of your home to encourage cross-ventilation.
- Switch to LED Lighting: LED lights generate less heat compared to traditional light bulbs and help reduce your electricity bill.
- Use Breathable Bedding: Light and airy fabrics such as linen, cotton, Lyocell and Tencel for your bedsheets and pillowcases are perfect for warm nights.
- Install Blackout Curtains: Choose light-coloured blackout curtains or blinds to reflect sunlight and minimise heat absorption. Adding solar films to your windows can further block out sun rays and reduce indoor temperatures by up to 5°C.
- Reduce Humidity: A dehumidifier can make your space feel cooler by lowering the moisture level in the air.
- Keep Windows Open at Night: Let cooler evening air flow into your home by keeping windows and doors open after sunset.

By implementing these tips, you can enjoy a cooler, more comfortable lifestyle without over-relying on air conditioning. Whether indoors or outdoors, staying mindful of your choices can make a big difference in battling Singapore's heat while staying energy-efficient. Keep cool, stay hydrated and embrace the sunny days ahead!

Mother's Day:

Celebration of Love

at MindChamps PreSchool
@ Raffles Town Club

At MindChamps PreSchool @ Raffles Town Club, Mother's Day was more than just a celebration — it was a meaningful tribute to the women whose love, strength and unwavering care shape the lives of our little Champs every day.

Our centre came alive with joy and warmth as proud mothers were welcomed into a morning filled with smiles, surprises, and cherished memories. Our celebration began with a heartwarming performance by our Champs, who serenaded their mummies with sweet, soulful songs. Each melody was infused with pure affection, and many parents were moved to tears as they witnessed the love and gratitude radiating from the stage.

Following the performance, all mothers and their Champs bonded through a hands-on craft activity, creating heartfelt keepsakes together. With laughter, chatter, and creativity flowing, these shared moments became treasured memories — tokens of love that will be cherished for years to come. All mothers were treated to a delightful tea session featuring freshly baked pies and cooling grass jelly drinks. It was the perfect way to relax, connect, and savour the joy of togetherness.

Our Mother's Day celebration was a beautiful reminder of the love, connection, and community that lie at the heart of every child's learning journey.
